From the CIO's Desk - November 2025

At the outset, let me apologize for the delay in writing to you this month. The results season and travel schedule completely took over my time. As the retired oracle of investing, Warren Buffett, often reminded us, the right communication matters more than frequent communication. I wanted to write only when there was something meaningful to share.

So, let's dive into what October looked like. Did you notice how the Nifty finally broke out of its long consolidation phase? We certainly did and we believe a few factors came together at the same time:

- GST 2.0 reforms quietly boosting demand
- Earnings coming in better than expected, backed by stronger management commentary
- Supportive global market sentiment
- And yes... a surprisingly silent Trump

Earlier this month, I spent six days on the road meeting nearly 30 investors, across sizes, risk profiles, and backgrounds. What stood out to me was this: The fear is gone.

The anxiety that dominated conversations earlier this year has faded. In its place, I sensed calmness, composure, and a more realistic view of returns. Even the acceptance of a pure large-cap product was refreshing, perhaps aided by moderated market returns over the past year and the reality check on the unlisted side.

In many ways, the last year has reset expectations and reminded investors of the importance of the right advisors and the right strategy. Now, here's something interesting to observe together: This rally feels different.

This time, the market's strength is being driven by stocks that were earlier underperformers, companies that most investors were underweight on. On the other hand, names that had already rallied through the year aren't seeing the same follow-up buying.

What's even more telling is the market's behavior around earnings. Companies that delivered strong results were rewarded, in some cases, even before the results were officially announced. Those that disappointed corrected, but not as sharply as in previous quarters.

To us, this reflects one thing: the underlying strength and maturity of this market cycle.

NAV CHART

NOVEMBER 2025 WHAT WE WROTE DURING THE MONTH

Monthly Fund Performance Update

StaG AIF continued to deliver consistent, risk-managed returns through our focused large-cap strategy. Despite a muted market, the fund outperformed the benchmark and remains firmly on track to achieve the 2025 target of 20 percent XIRR.

Discipline continues to translate into steady compounding.

How We Learn From Our Experiences

Our strength lies in deep, conviction-led research that blends macro understanding with on-ground realities. This allows us to avoid risks like IndusInd and identify winners like ABB India early.

Research depth is what builds long-term conviction.

👉 [Explore the full note \[here\]](#)

Where the Next Earnings Risk Lies

Commercial real estate and REITs face structural pressure as AI-driven efficiencies reduce office demand and refinancing risks rise. Stability may mask underlying fragility in the coming quarters.

Selectivity is essential as hidden risks emerge.

👉 [See detailed analysis \[here\]](#)

Rationality versus Convention

While markets appear calm, our method focuses on real indicators like EBITDA growth rather than surface-level stability or crowd behaviour. This helps us navigate risks more effectively.

Rational decisions outperform conventional assumptions.

Tata Motors Demerger: A Strategic Reset

Tata Motors' demerger separates PV, EV, and JLR from the CV business, unlocking value and improving strategic clarity. Our analysis suggests the PV business alone could be valued at 3.3 to 3.5 lakh crore.

A structural reset that creates asymmetric upside.

Festivals Bringing Good News

Nifty's breakout above 25,500 signals a fresh rally, supported by earnings momentum and renewed investor participation. STAG continues to outperform within this trend.

Strength in fundamentals is finally reflecting in prices.

☞ [View our full perspective \[here\]](#)

Déjà vu Moment

The excitement around gold and silver resembles earlier phases in midcaps and small caps. We continue to prioritise consistency over hype, staying focused on quality large caps.

Fast rallies fade, disciplined compounding lasts.

☞ [Understand our stance \[here\]](#)

What Is Happening in the Unlisted Space and Why

Unlisted markets remain crowded with irrational pricing and limited liquidity. Our investment approach continues to value patience, transparency, and valuation discipline.

Avoid noise, follow clarity and valuation.

Follow-Up on the Unlisted Space

A deeper conversation reinforced that FOMO-led unlisted markets often misprice risk. At Senora, clarity and discipline remain our compass.

Sustainable investing requires thoughtful restraint.

My View on IPO Valuations

IPO numbers often look attractive due to short-term profit dressing. We look beyond valuation excitement to assess true quality, scalability, and sustainability.

Fundamentals matter more than listing-day noise.

Portfolio Snapshot

The portfolio remains balanced with a healthy mix of strong and mild growth names. Importantly, muted growth stocks are positioned for structural improvement over the coming quarters while strong growth names continue to drive performance.

SECTOR OUTLOOK

Banking Sector

Public sector banks have been the clear standouts, collectively reporting a record cumulative net profit of ₹49,456 crore in Q2 FY26 so far. Margin compression was a broad challenge but appears to be bottoming out. Loan growth and asset quality are improving, which bodes well for earnings stability through the rest of the year.

IT Sector

Growth remains muted as discretionary spending stays weak and large deal conversions continue to delay revenue recognition. A broad-based recovery still looks unlikely in the near term.

Cement Sector

The sector remains well positioned with cost efficiencies holding up and volumes steady despite seasonal headwinds. In H2 FY26, the focus shifts to improving pricing and executing capacity expansions already underway.

Auto Sector

The sector is in an upcycle, moving from volume-led to value-led growth. GST rationalisation and higher disposable incomes are expected to unlock further demand, particularly in the LCV category.

Consumer Sector

Sustained recovery hinges on a demand pickup in H2. GST-related channel disruptions should settle, pricing appears to be stabilising, and both rural demand and discretionary consumption are likely to support volume-led growth.

Capital Goods Sector

A phase of steady but selective growth. Corporate capex is finally showing momentum, and continued government spending should support order book expansion and healthy revenue growth.

Infrastructure & Telecom Sector

Companies with strong monetisation capabilities are well placed. ARPU improvement is expected as data consumption rises and service offerings deepen. Execution speed and disciplined working capital management will remain key differentiators.

PORTFOLIO SPOTLIGHT ETERNAL LTD

Performance and Management Context

Eternal continues to be one of the strongest examples of our stock-picking ability, with visible wealth creation reflecting the market's confidence in its transition from hyper-growth to profitability.

Across verticals, performance remained robust.

- The food delivery business delivered record profitability.
- Blinkit posted its strongest growth in recent quarters.
- District continued to scale steadily.
- Hyperpure experienced a temporary setback due to Blinkit's model transition.

Management remains committed to scaling market share, which requires meaningful upfront investments and cash burn, particularly within quick commerce and the district business.

Our Investment Thesis

Eternal provides three strategic exposures within the portfolio:

1. Leadership in India's rapidly expanding online food services market.
2. Operating leverage through adjacencies such as quick commerce, B2B supply, and loyalty programs.
3. Structural upside from sustained improvements in unit economics and the potential for a valuation re-rating as profitability strengthens.

Key Drivers for Improved Valuation

- Continued improvement in contribution margins from food delivery orders.
- Faster scale-up of quick commerce with declining losses per order.
- Monetisation of the broader ecosystem through advertising, subscriptions, and B2B supply, improving overall ROE.
- Macroeconomic tailwinds driven by higher internet penetration, rising disposable incomes, and urbanisation.

OUR VIEW

We reiterate that Eternal is a once-in-a-generation company. We expect sustained high revenue growth supported by improving operating leverage and strong cash generation as profitability deepens across segments. With its first-mover advantage, disciplined execution, and ongoing margin expansion, Eternal remains a high-conviction long-term compounder in our portfolio.

Powering India's changing lifestyles

FROM THE CIO'S DESK - REFLECTION & MARKET VIEW

So, what should we expect from the market from here?

Our stance remains unchanged. We continue to stay bullish on the markets in both the medium and long term. In the short term, a few technical and liquidity factors require attention.

According to our technical desk, 25,200 is a key support level. With continued FII selling and a steady supply of paper through IPOs, liquidity remains tight for a one-way rally. What does this mean?

The market is likely to form higher highs and higher lows instead of a sharp vertical move. As the earnings tailwind continues into Q3, we expect the market to find further upside, supported by improving investor confidence and a potential shift in FII positioning.

What will drive the next leg of the market? Let us break down the biggest trigger very clearly.

FII flows.

If you are wondering what will bring FIIs back, here is what matters:

◆ FIIs look at returns in dollar terms. On a twelve-month basis, India's dollar returns are only marginally positive. Compare this with US bond yields at 4 to 5 percent and an average INR depreciation of 4 to 5 percent per year. This creates a high hurdle rate. Unless earnings grow above 14 to 15 percent, the equation does not tilt in India's favour.

◆ In Q3, we believe this threshold is achievable. If earnings deliver at this pace, FIIs will have a compelling reason to increase their exposure to India.

◆ We also believe the rupee is due for appreciation. Once this begins, dollar returns improve meaningfully and FII outflows should slow or even reverse.

◆ A trade deal with the US would be another major catalyst. If this materializes, the perceived political risk premium reduces significantly and opens the door for a stronger FII comeback.

To summarise: Despite the noise, India's inherent market strength remains intact, supported by steady corporate earnings and robust domestic flows. We remain confident that new highs will be made this financial year.
